1. On 10 April 2015, the Investigations Division of the Office of Internal Oversight Services received a report of possible misconduct implicating United Nations personnel at the Office of the High Commissioner for Human Rights in Geneva, Switzerland.
2. Specifically, it was reported that, in July 2014, you provided a copy of a confidential and un-redacted human rights investigation report to the Permanent Mission of France to the United Nations agencies in Geneva without authorization. The report, entitled "Human Rights and Justice Section Sexual abuse on children by international armed forces", included detailed interviews of minors who were alleged victims of sexual exploitation and abuse by international military troops operating in the Central African Republic. The troops implicated in the report included non-United Nations military forces from France (Operation Sangaris).
3. OIOS wishes to advise that the investigation into this report is now complete, and the evidence obtained does not substantiate the reported misconduct.
